

Judge Traver Reports To Supervisors About Pistol Permit Bureau

Recommends Increase in Fee
Charged for Possession of Pistol from 50 Cents to $1 to Increase Revenue.

OTHER MATTERS

Reports and Resolutions Presented for Action of Board
Monday Evening.

Several reports were received by the Ulster County Board of Supervisors in annual session Monday evening. Among the reports received was that of County Judge Frederick G. Traver under whose direction the pistol permit bureau is operated. In his report to the board of the expenditures for the last year in connection with the issuing of pistol permits, Judge Traver once again recommended that the fee for a pistol permit be raised to at least $1 instead of the present 50 cents. He suggested that the matter be taken up with the senator and assemblyman from this district with the idea of having the fee increased to an amount which will make the pistol permit bureau self-sustaining.

The county each year makes an appropriation of $600 for this bureau and this amount was again asked this year for operation of the bureau. Judge Traver called attention to the economical manner in which the bureau is conducted and in his report suggested that the fee be increased to at least $1 or preferably $2.

In suggesting an increase in the fee he called attention to the fact that a citizen is required to pay over $2 for a hunting license while a person who desires to carry a pistol concealed upon his person for some reason or another is required to pay but 50 cents. This he said might be increased to $1 so the bureau would be self-supporting or nearly so without the county making an appropriation to meet the deficiency. An increase to $2 he said might also discourage many people from seeking the pistol permit unless they required such a permit for a real purpose when the fee would be of little moment. The report was referred to committee on legislation.

Financial Report

Judge Traver's financial report showed a balance of $56.59 on October 31, 1936, and an appropriation of $600. From the total amount available, $619.59 was expended from November 1, 1936 to October 31, 1937, leaving a balance in the fund on October 31, 1937 of $37. The 50 cent fees which were received and totaled $379.50 have been turned over to the county treasurer.

Supervisor Snyder, of Saugerties, moved that there be printed 1,000 copies of the proceedings of the board, 700 to be paper covered and 300 to be bound. A committee composed of Supervisors Ashby, Howe and Cragin was named to advertise for bids and the resolution authorized the receipt of bids up until December 6, 1937, carried.

County Treasurer Boice reported that he had paid out for various towns of the county the following amounts for lunacy proceedings, such amounts to be charged back to the towns as follows: Esopus, $80; Gardiner, $40; Kingston City, $490; Lloyd, $100; Marlborough, $40; Marlborough, $20; New Paltz, $60; Olive, $20; Plattekill, $20; Rosendale, $30; Saugerties, $200; Ulster, $20; Woodstock, $40, and on the county at large $40. A total of $1,250.

County Treasurer Boice also certified a list of properties in the county which the county has taken over for non-payment of taxes and requested that the properties be stricken from the tax rolls of the various towns. On motion of Supervisors Williams, Thielman and Osterhoudt such action was taken from the properties will be stricken from the assessed valuations of the towns in which they are situated.

District Attorney Cleon B. Murray reported that there had been received $850 in fines paid directly to the county clerk in criminal proceedings and these moneys had been turned over to the county treasurer by the county clerk. The fines reported were: John Durham $500; Malcolm Lyons $50; Samuel Kuntz $200 and John Guadagnola $100.

Court and Jury Fund

Mr. Murray also made a report on the disbursements from the court and jury fund as follows: Balance $65.92. Appropriation for 1937, $2,000. Total receipts $2,065.92. Expenditures $1,586.91. Balance on hand at close of present fiscal year $479.01.

The report was referred to the committee on appropriations.

A report from the Committee on Bovine TB Eradication was received and filed and a request for $2,000 appropriation for continuation of this work was referred to the committee on appropriations. The report showed total receipts of $2,451.91, including the balance of $351.91 and the $2,100 appropriation made last year, and a total expenditure of $2,008.52, leaving a balance at the close of

Brown Case Due in Court of Appeals At Albany Today

Fifth on the day calendar before the Court of Appeals the Charles James Brown appeal was not reached before the court recessed at 6 o'clock Monday afternoon and the case is listed as second to be reached this afternoon when the court convenes.

Brown, negro bandman and fishmarket employe at Ellenville, was convicted for the murder of Isadore Handelman, an aged man who resided on Pine street, Ellenville, in Ellenville's famous torch murder. It was charged that Brown had knowledge of the fact that Handelman, junk-dealer in the village, usually had a considerable sum of money about the place. Brown had worked at odd jobs for Handelman at various times. It developed during the trial that Handelman and his wife were both found practically unarmed in their bedroom after Ellenville firemen had extinguished an early morning fire which followed a fire in the same locality a short time prior.

Quarrel With Girl
The prosecution charged that Brown, having had a quarrel with his girl over money matters, had taken a piece of pinion gear from an old car which was in a room adjacent to his quarters in the Kappaport house and had gone over to the Handelman home armed with the pinion gear. Entering the house he went to the second floor and there attempted to rob the aged couple. It was charged that Handelman awoke and that Brown attacked him and also Mrs. Handelman when she came to her husband's assistance. Evidence was offered on a confession which Brown is alleged to have made to the effect that after he killed and endeavored to light his way to examine the bedding for hidden money but that the bedding took fire and he "let her burn" and left the place.

It was charged that Brown has been afraid to light the electric lights because of fear of attracting attention.

Troopers Checking on Car Head-lights, Find 50 Per Cent Defective

Safety Educational Campaign
Under Way in This Section on Car Lighting as Troopers Test Local Cars.

TO CONTINUE

Tests on Car Lights Will be
State Police.

"At least 50 per cent of the cars checked had defective head-lights," said Sergeant Thomas Mangin, director of safety for the 10 counties comprised in the territory of Troop C, as he discussed with a Freeman reporter this morning a check-up of cars traveling over this section of 9-W between five and 10 o'clock last night.

Sergeant Mangin, acting under orders of Captain Fox of Troop C, is supervising the troopers in carrying out an intensive safety campaign, part of the state-wide campaign begun by the State Police some time since.

As part of the campaign, Corporal Cadwell of Sidney has been visiting various parts of the Troop C territory and giving safety talks before Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and other service and social organizations.

The sergeant said that last night, when Troop C was on duty, a number of troopers, made a check-up in the Highland territory. At the same time Corporal Cadwell, Trooper Kelly and others did similar duty on that part of 9-W from Kingston to Saugerties.

Test Described

Special attention was paid to the head-light problem last night and brief tests were made of each car's headlight by means of a screen placed about 25 feet in front of the car. At that distance, if the car was on the level, the headlights should throw practically level on the screen. If they were found to deviate to any extent it was proof that at some further distance the defect would be much more serious.

The sergeant said that the trouble most generally met with was that the high intensity beam in the headlight was much too high. This meant that at a distance the beam not only was being thrown on the roadway, where it belonged, but was also being thrown with dazzling effect into the eyes of approaching motorists.

Other defects were found. In some cases the beams crossing, instead of focusing ahead of the car as they should.

Emphasis was laid upon the fact that the present activity was designed not so much to make arrests, but to educate motorists and show them that they were driving cars which were potentially dangerous not only to themselves but to others.

Detective head-lights, said Sergeant Mangin, meant that the driver of the car is not able properly to distinguish objects ahead of him on the road, with consequent danger to his own car and to other cars and pedestrians.

For their own safety, said the sergeant, car drivers should make sure that their headlights comply with the law and are focused so that they accomplish what they are meant to do—show the driver what is on the road ahead of him, without endangering others.

The sergeant said that hundreds of cars were observed and tested Monday night, with the result, as stated, that at least 50 per cent of them were found to have defective headlights. It costs very little, he said, to have headlights tested and make sure that they are right.

It is by no means the old cars that have a monopoly of bad headlights, said the sergeant. He said that they found many new cars with lights that were far from right and he suggested that people purchasing new cars make sure the headlights are checked up and found to be in proper condition.

A few cents paid for a check-up of car lights may prove to be a mighty cheap insurance, said Sergeant Mangin, as he left tonight to take up plans for a further check-up on cars tonight.

While the object of the check-up last night was not to make arrests, one driver in the Kingston-Saugerties section ran into difficulties as a result of being stopped for a test of his headlights.

He was Promer Woodard, 40, of 240 Washington avenue, whose condition as observed by the troopers was such as to lead them to place him under arrest on a charge of driving while intoxicated. He was arraigned before Justice Walter Webber, who held him under $100 bail for a hearing later. Woodard was taken to the Ulster county jail, but later bail was furnished and he was released. Woodard is listed as a second offender, having been convicted about a year ago of a similar offense, at which time he paid a fine of $50.

Closed on Thursday
The ERB will be closed on Thursday and those who get their food slips on that day may obtain them Wednesday at the commissary.

"No-Profit" Milk Plant in New York To Break Prices

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Representatives of the American Labor Party and the Milk Consumers Protective Committee were aligned today to develop a "no profit" milk distribution plan for New York city.

Delegates of the 40 bodies conferred last night in an effort to organize a cooperative method of eliminating middlemen's profits and thereby give farmers a higher return for milk which would be sold at lower cost to housewives.

To illustrate the cooperative plan, Philip Schiff, head worker of the Madison Square Settlement, told the meeting that 299 quarts of grade B milk had been sold yesterday in the settlement at eight cents a quart— with 1,400 prospective purchasers turned away when the supply was exhausted. Ordinarily, grade B milk cost 14 cents.

"We want to expand our experimental station," said Schiff, "and if we can get the support of the Dairy Farmers' Union and 30 or 40 other organizations like ours, we'll break the milk trust." The group appointed a joint committee to develop a "cooperative relationship" between milk producer and consumer and to draft a legislative program.

Dr. Caroline Whitney, chairman of the Milk Consumers Protective Committee, said the organization of a joint committee had been sought "for more than a year" and that "dairy farmers haven't received enough to maintain their cows, let alone make a decent living."

6 Point Farm Program

Wichita, Kas., Nov. 23 (AP)—American agriculture must establish its stability, Secretary Wallace declared today, or a rain belt across the nation's "forgotten industry" and carry the country back to another depression.

Addressing a group of Kansas wheat producers, he proposed a six-point farm program. In Washington the Senate was beginning deliberations on a crop control bill.

The real issue, Wallace declared, is whether "agriculture is to have a fair chance."

"Temporarily, perhaps, the action can get along with farmers like seeds or peons supplying cheap food and cheap fiber for cheaply paid labor in the cities. But such a policy never has led to anything but disaster. To adopt

Rules Committee Unable to Agree to Measure, Lacks
Sufficient Votes to Get It on Floor of House.

RAYBURN ACTIVE

Signs Petition Designed to Bring Measure up for Action in Mid-December.

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—House leaders abandoned hope today of getting the rules committee to withdraw its opposition to the administration's wage and hours bill.

At Speaker Bankhead's press conference, Chairman O'Connor (D., N. Y.) of the Rules Committee said the leadership had "exhausted every possible effort" to obtain sufficient votes in the committee to let the House consider the legislation.

"There is no possibility of the bill being considered by that method," he said.

Majority Leader Rayburn, (D., Tex.), went immediately from the press conference to the House chamber and added his signature to a petition which, if signed by 218 members, would bring the wage-hour measure to the floor about mid-December. When the House adjourned yesterday, 153 members had signed.

Does Not Sign

Bankhead said he did not intend to sign the petition and expressed belief that "no Speaker of the House, whether Democrat or Republican, who occupies a judicial position, should be asked to sign a petition to discharge a committee, especially the Rules Committee."

Rayburn's action was regarded as designed to get all friends of the legislation in the House to follow his example.

A short time before, Bankhead and Rayburn conferred secretly with committee members opposing the legislation in the hope of changing their stand.

Organized labor's internal feud, some legislators said today, has lessened the chances for enactment of wage-hour legislation in the special congressional session.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, demanded that the bill be revised or another substituted. He stated his organization's position in a letter yesterday to Chairman Norton (D.-N. J.) of the House labor committee.

House members received last week a statement from John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization and of labor's Non-Parliament League, urging enactment of the measure "without further delay."

Don't Want To Take Sides

As a result of the labor split, some representatives said, some of their colleagues might not want to appear to be taking sides in the labor dispute by signing a pending petition intended to compel the rules committee to release the legislation.

The petition had 153 signatures out of 218 needed to complete it. Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas said he would add his name unless the rules committee in session this morning, voted to free the bill.

Green criticized the bill on two counts:

It would set up an administrative board, similar to the labor relations board, which the A. F. of L. has accused of partiality to the C. I. O.

He said the Federation believed provisions for a shorter work day an drawback should be incorporated by Congress because of the "serious recession of business."

Green said the Federation could not endorse the bill "until the same has been revised, whether the above suggested amendments or methods or through others to be submitted by the American Federation of Labor, to preserve it beyond doubt and without possibility of distortion as the constructive force" contemplated by President Roosevelt.

"How Old Is Ann?" Gave Puzzle Sharks a Problem

The question, "How old is Ann?" refers to an old mathematical problem which had a wide vogue at the beginning of the Twentieth century. On October 12, 1903, the New York Press, in its column "On the Tip of the Tongue," printed the following letter submitted by a correspondent who signed himself John Mahon and gave his residence as Brooklyn:

"Mary is twenty-four years old. She is twice as old as Ann was when she was as old as Ann is now. How old is Ann now? A says the answer is sixteen; B says twelve. Which is correct?"

Mark Sullivan, in Our Times, says that this letter "started people sharpening pencils over the entire country, and for half a dozen years remained a subject of dispute and means of pastime." The imperfect manner in which the problem was stated (both the answers given were incorrect) not only confused those attempting to solve it, but also contributed to the fascination of the task. Several persons, it was reported, went insane trying to find out how old Ann was. All sorts of "Ann problems" (some of them entirely new and some of them merely modifications of the original) were published for the amusement of the public.

From what source the writer of the letter printed in the New York Press obtained the original problem is not known. That it antedates 1903, in one form or another, is probable. Some people have attributed the original Ann problem to Sam Loyd, an inventor of puzzles and brain-twisters, but there is no evidence to support the claim. The problem as stated in the paper presents no particular mathematical difficulties and is readily solved by algebra. The answer is that Ann is eighteen years of age, says a writer in the Indianapolis News.

Cultivated Before 1519

The Mexicans had cultivated the dahlia before the Spaniards arrived in 1519 but it was about 300 years later, in 1791, that the plants appeared in Europe, at the Botanic Gardens in Madrid, Spain. The newer forms have all been brought about since the year 1800. The native Mexican name of the dahlia was scocotli which means water pipe and its present name is in honor of the famous Spanish botanist, Dr. Andreas Dahl.

Ancient Hygiene

While methods of disease transmission are discoveries of recent years, the Mosaic laws made provision against transmission that are similar to our own, but go a long, long way further. A person who touched an unclean animal or thing caught the uncleanness and had to wash himself and his clothing in running water, sometimes the cleansing lasting for many days.

The Rogue Himself

Shakespeare certainly needed no foreign tutelage in crime and criminals, for, ready to hand, he had good English matter in the beggar-books and in the actual life of his day, and his was the genius of all others for transferring this matter to art. Small wonder, then, that his rascals remain vitally distinct and individual: for where the Spanish novelists and their continental followers are silent upon society seen through the eyes of the rogue, Shakespeare in Falstaff has anatomized the rogue himself.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Science Editor

New York—First there was the Morse wire, then wireless, third "wired wireless" and now a new idea is appearing for communication channels in the form of electrical air pipes.

This is a hollow pipe, with the air inside highly electrified. For short distances, in the Bell Telephone Laboratories, these hollow pipes conduct ultra-short radio waves.

The radio waves follow the pipe. While a pipe is more expensive than a wire, the electrified air in a small pipe gives promise of transmitting as many simultaneous messages as hundreds of wires.

The laboratories already have built a co-axial cable, a single wire within a hollow pipe, which is equal to scores of ordinary wires. But the scientists are looking forward to more spectacular achievements by using the piped air itself. The experiments are told by G. C. Southworth in the journal of Applied Physics.

Granted Divorce

Robert Kennedy has been granted a divorce in an action brought against his wife, Mabel Fields Kennedy. The action was tried before Supreme Court Justice Harry E. Schrick in October. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for plaintiff. Plaintiff and defendant were married at Saucettia on May 23, 1921, and the acts upon which the decree is based are alleged to have taken place during the summer of 1931 at Glaseo with a man, William Hull. By the terms of the decree the plaintiff may re-marry but the defendant is forbidden to marry again. It was charged that the defendant has since left the county and gone to New York. Witnesses testified the defendant had lived at Glaseo with William Hull and left there at about the same time he did. The decree is interlocutory.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A stage manager of one of the opera companies tells of two of his divas who are carrying on a feud with one another. It appears that one of his warblers in a flirtatious mood, carried off the boy friend of the other.

The jilted one immediately favored her more successful confrere with a blistering dressing-down, calling her 50 different kinds of Judas and warning her to keep out of her path thereafter. It was a ringing denunciation, replete with acrimonious invective and leaving the atmosphere quite decidedly sulphurous and blue.

Finally she ended on a note which was a masterpiece of rebellious whimsy: "And you can find someone else to lend your curling tongs to after this, too!" she screamed.

WILLIAM A. BRADY, one of the veteran and more successful producers hereabouts, received a lot of enthusiastic comment after his talk on the radio the other night. The husband of Grace George, whose career has been as chock-full of adventure as four Sax Rohmer novels, related many exciting moments in his theatrical and sporting life, such as the time he presented Helen Hayes in a play one night and managed the late Tim Corbett in a prize fight the next.

However, as he humorously recalled, his most thrilling achievement came at the age of nine. Devoted to the theater even at that age, he was seated in "peanut heaven," which means the upper balcony, one night, and from that distance succeeded in throwing a marble through the bars drum in the orchestra pit. That, he says, gave him his greatest thrill.

IT ISN'T generally known that John Golden, another eminent producer with a fund of anecdotal reminiscences that would startle even Bob Burns, has piled the odds of a brick layer in his career. Yet, it is true. In addition to accepting packages from Irish hod carriers, he has been a lawyer, a song writer, an inventor and a comic-strip artist. His most notable achievement on "Tin Pan alley" was the hit, "Poor Butterfly," which he wrote in collaboration with Ray Hubbell, and on another occasion he wrote a song in collaboration with Woodrow Wilson.

Professor Golden's latest contribution to the theatrical scene is one of the town's three smash hits, "Susan and God." He aims to throw four others into rehearsal between now and February.

Subway stations have long been popular as indoor retreats for homeless men, especially during winter. However, they are not warm in winter. These subterranean enclosures often are colder than the air on the street levels.

Presents

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

ON Christopher Columbus' birthday table were ears of corn tied up with fine ribbons. It had been Mrs. Quacko Duck who had wanted to fix them up prettily although Top Notch had thought it was enough that the presents were on the table.

There were also nuts on the table and some pretty silver paper and in the center was a cake. It was made with plenty of nuts, and in the center was a single candle.

"I put only one candle there," said Willy Nilly, "to show that there is only one important crown in the world or in Puddle Muddle in our opinion—and also because we seemed to be all out of candles."

There were other presents of food and as Christopher unwrapped them the bears growled: "Oh, Christopher, what are these presents you're receiving. Not but what you deserve them—but they certainly are beautiful."

"Food isn't beautiful, exactly," bleated Sweet Face, the lamb. "Anything is beautiful that is lovely and wonderful and glorious and perfect," growled Jelly Bear.

"And that gives happiness and joy and pleasure and delight," growled Honey Bear.

"Never have I heard such talk!" barked Rip, laughing. "If you asked us to name one word that expressed everything fine," added Blacky Bear, "it would be the word food."

"I'll share my food with all of you," grinned Christopher.

"You dear, sweet, angelic, unselfish crow," growled Chubby.

"I never was called all those names before," laughed Christopher. "I've been more apt to be called quite different things!"

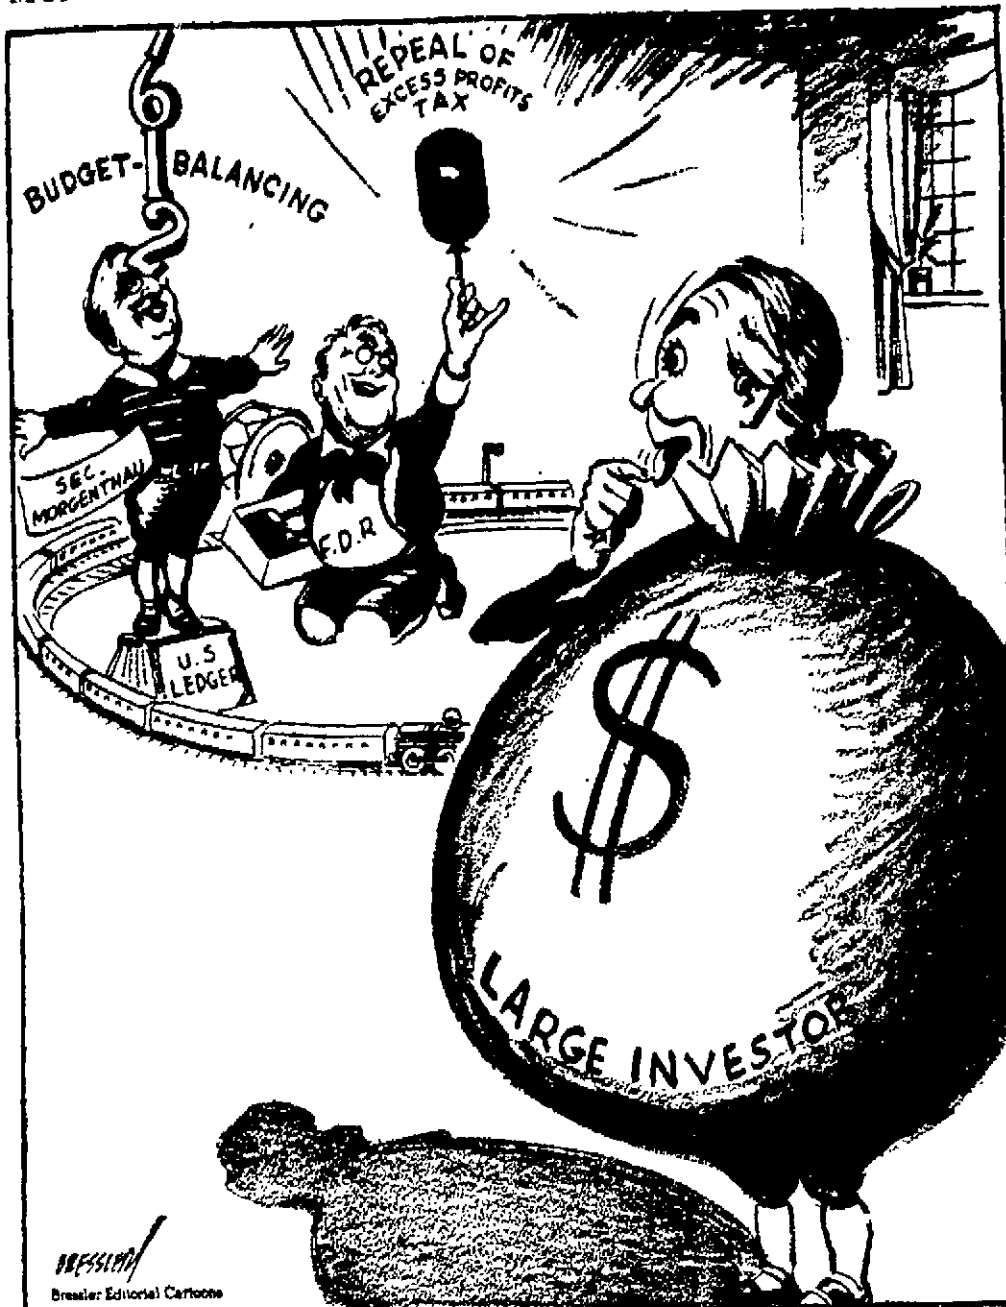

Tomorrow "Better Than Food."

"COMON OVER AND PLAY!"

Rumblin' Notes About the Town

Judging from the testimony of the residents of East Chester street at the public hearing at the city hall the other night there is no question but that heavy truck traffic is a nuisance in a residential section, but how to eliminate the nuisance is another question. Times do progress and while advancing time adds to the conveniences of city life it also adds to the inconveniences, and even more so if you live along a thickly traveled thoroughfare.

Probably the only sane remedy for the situation, not only in Kingston but in other cities and villages through which pass state highways, is the building of concrete roads that by-pass the cities and villages, and which are built to carry trucks carrying loads of 18 tons or more.

Many readers will recall the agitation when it was proposed to build the present Rondout Creek Bridge in its present location. Some of the leading citizens of the city thought it should be built further down the creek entering the city by way of lower Broadway or Hasbrouck avenue. Those who saw the bridge erected—at least a majority of them—had no idea of the amount of traffic the bridge was destined to carry and that was only a few years ago. The bridge had been built so that it entered the downtown business section what a congestion of traffic there would have been. There is no question that traffic conditions—bad as they are by using Wurts street—would be even greater if all traffic flowed through the downtown business section and either up the Broadway hill or the Hasbrouck avenue hill.

In the past there has always been residents who objected to their city or village being bypassed by a heavily traveled state road. Out in the village of Saugerties they had the same question raised, and today their opinion has changed. Now they cannot get a by-pass built quickly enough to relieve the crowded traffic congestion on the narrow street with its dangerous turns as one enters the village over Route 9-W.

It would seem that in Kingston it is only a question of time when the state will be forced to erect another bridge across the Rondout Creek, and if a bridge will be erected somewhere between the Wilbur railroad bridge and Eddyville bridge. This bridge will be the connecting link of a state highway that will completely by-pass the city and none of the traffic it carries will pass through the city.

The need of such a by-pass is shown daily by the heavy traffic that clogs our streets and especially during the summer months when traffic here is more than doubled.

Every year sees an addition to the number of auto trucks that throng the highways, and every year greater numbers of trucks pass through Kingston. Traffic conditions grow worse instead of better. The streets of Kingston were never built to take care of heavy out of town traffic. They were laid out in the days of the horse and buggy age when no one even dreamed of the modern machine of today with its high speed and enormous size.

New super-highways built to carry out of town traffic and built in the country where they do not pass through cities and villages are what one may expect in the future.

the future. At the present time auto drivers are contributing more than enough in gasoline taxes and in motor taxes to build many miles of such highways if the money that the autoist chips into the state's spending basket was not diverted to other uses.

When the time comes when legislators at Albany have enough backbone to unite and declare that money shall be used only for the purpose for which they are intended—that is building and maintenance of roads—and then only will cities and villages be relieved of the traffic problems that they now have.

And residents will be able to sleep with the windows closed or open.

Two's Company

By MARGARET CLION HEZOG

The Characters

Nina, ex-debutante, impulsively married David, hoping to end her love for her stepfather. Now she appreciates David and is disgusted with Richard.

Richard, the suave, handsome stepfather, proposed secret love to Nina.

Honey, Nina's gay, childish mother, is wild about Richard.

David, a bright young auto salesman with a small salary, adores Nina.

Gracie, an old girl friend of David, still pursues him.

Chapter 4

Miasma Of Lies

AFTER Nina and David had been lunching a few minutes, the telephone rang.

It was Richard.

"Hello . . . Oh, hello, Richard," (Nina could have kicked herself afterwards, for saying the name.) "I'm sorry, no. Really? . . . How is Nina's Honey? . . . That's good . . . No. Don't you remember we talked that all over? . . . No. Please, Richard . . ."

With David only a few feet away, Nina had to sound much nicer than she had intended to.

Richard was saying: "You sound so unconvincing, my darling, that I am laughing at you!"

"Well don't . . . laugh, my dear." Out of the corner of her eye, she could see David listening because he couldn't help it.

Unostentatiously she put her finger down and disconnected her stepfather.

"Well, you were a lamb to call," she said to the dead wire, "but I really wouldn't dream of bothering you . . . Goodbye, my dear. Love to Honey . . ."

The phone rang one-half of one split second after she had supposedly hung up. It was a narrow escape. David would have caught on immediately if it had rung while she was still talking.

This time, Nina said: "Sorry, she's not here," and explained to David that the call was for Cordelia. "I'm expecting her any minute," she said.

"What in heaven's name did Richard want?" David asked curiously.

"What did he want? . . . Why, why he and Honey wanted to help me look for a new apartment, but naturally I couldn't think of letting them bother . . ."

"Um-m-m," said David, "nice of him."

Nina hated the miasma of lies, but what could she do?

David stayed on for a while, and finally he said: "Where's Cordelia?"

"Why, that's right . . . Oh, I guess she must have been . . . Up somewhere. She'll be along."

But of course Cordelia didn't come, and finally David had to get back to work.

Cocktails At Honey's

NINA went back into the living-room, feeling uncomfortably certain that David suspected something.

When the telephone rang for the third time, she ran to it quickly, ready to take Richard's head off for bothering her.

But it wasn't Richard, it was Honey.

"That bad husband of yours hasn't been near me since I came back," she complained to Nina.

"Come over for dinner darling, you dinner, will you?"

But of course she couldn't. To get a private word with her? . . . Nina shuddered at the thought.

"I'm afraid we can't make dinner, Honey, but I'll call David and we could stop by for a cocktail, if that'd be all right."

So that's what they did: and in spite of Nina's crossed fingers and fervent prayers, Richard was at home.

He was, suave, good-looking, and with the old amused look in his eye, which showed quite plainly that he had not accepted defeat.

David's fault, that was his presence at the apartment had made Nina speak so much more gently than she would have otherwise.

From the way Richard treated her you could tell that he thought Nina had merely gone girlish and coy on him, all of a sudden. Nina was certain that he had figured out she was embarrassed at having thrown herself into his arms so quickly, upon his return . . . was simply delaying her capitulation.

That was the way his mind would work. It troubled her, and so did something else.

Honey looked tired again. Some of the first glow of homecoming, the excitement, had worn off. She was not her old, vibrant self.

David and Honey were talking a blue streak, so for a while Nina had a chance to notice and worry by herself. But all of a sudden David said something that made her start in her chair.

"It was darned nice of both of you," he remarked to the two Chalmers, "to offer to hunt apartment with us . . . but you really mustn't bother. I'm going to take

Governor Clinton Monday evening.

The Mt. Marion Home Bureau held a meeting on Monday morning, November 11, at the home of Miss Bertha Snyder, with 15 present.

Miss Bertha Snyder of Cornell taught a lesson on room arrangement which was most interesting and instructive.

On Thursday, November 18, the Ladies Aid of the Plattekill Reformed Church held a meeting and a community supper. Mrs. George Gibson and Mrs. David Sheffer were in charge of the supper which was both delicious and bountiful. Thirty dollars was cleared on the supper which made it a decided financial success also.

On Thursday evening the Congregation of the Plattekill Reformed Church held a business meeting and election of officers. Robert Snyder was elected elder to succeed Jesse Myer and John Dedrick was elected deacon to succeed Fred Osterhoudt.

Mrs. Robert Snyder is spending some time in New York city.

a couple of days off soon, and Nina and I can come to the town."

They and Richard were looking a little dumfounded, but after a second or two, they smiled.

One of them said: "Well, we'd be glad to help, you know . . ."

But David, quick to catch on to things, sensed that something was wrong.

He glanced at Nina, and then changed the subject; but on the walk home, he brought it up again.

"What was it, Nina, did you put my foot in it or something about that apartment-hunting business?"

"Why no, dear . . . how could you have? Why?"

"Richard did call you and you said 'no' didn't you? Didn't he?"

"Yes, David, I don't see what . . ."

Such a little thing . . . such a little, necessary lie and she should get caught up like this. Well, that was the way things went Nina supposed—hating the whole business. She had been so wicked; said, and done, and wanted so many dreadful things, and never been found out . . . until now—when with every inch of her, she wanted to be good!

"Well," David shrugged, "let it go, only there was something funny about it. I'm certain."

"Maybe," Nina made an effort, "maybe Richard was just saying it on the spur of the moment, when he spoke to me, and forgot to mention it to Honey . . . She did look kind of surprised."

"Yes . . . David looked down at his shoes. There was no reason, of course, why he shouldn't look down at his shoes as they walked along, but to Nina, watching him nervously, it seemed unnatural."

"Yes . . . maybe it was Richard's idea . . . That may have been it."

More Explaining To Do

AT THEIR apartment door they found Cordelia, just turning away.

"Oh, darling," she greeted Nina, "how mean of you! Carl's place and I've been just at his place and he sent you some heavenly liqueur candies from Paris. Here they are. I was going to munch some with you—but I've been waiting and waiting and now I have to go."

David said: "Well don't scold her. You can't expect the poor kid to wait for a second anyway."

He unlocked the door, and protected the two girls from Button's eyes as they entered the hall.

"I went all over the stables. Carl has some young stock that looks mighty good to me. Honestly, I think we were down with the horses about four hours."

"And you're just about four hours late!" chided David.

"What the devil are you talking about?" Cordelia turned on David.

"Late? How am I late . . . for what?"

For a minute, Nina couldn't think what he meant either, and then it came to her; more aftermath from her afternoon's lies . . .

"I thought," she put in quickly, "I thought you said the other day, that you were going to stop by, after Harmony . . ."

Cordelia looked astounded: "Why, darling, why would I have said that? I went down unexpected this morning!"

And, this time, it was David who smoothed it over, by asking about Carl and how he was getting along without Hester . . . and it made Nina more uncomfortable than ever, because if he had behaved naturally, he would have asked and asked until the mystery was cleared up. He would have said: "Why were you crazy, Cordelia. You must have forgotten . . . somebody called you here!" . . . But he didn't.

He was gay with a gaiety that seemed to Nina, in her nervousness, to be turned on, rather than spontaneous.

He said: "To head with half a teaspoon of liquor in a piece of chocolate I'll mix up a real drink . . ."

They had had three cocktails at the Chalmers, but Nina accepted another, gratefully.

As usual, Cordelia succumbed to David's persuasiveness and stayed. And she stayed on for dinner, too, at his insistence, breaking some engagement by telephone.

Nina didn't like it.

She wanted to be alone with him. So newly, and so wonderfully in love with her husband, she couldn't bear to have these two little mysteries between them. She couldn't talk about them any more, naturally, but she felt that she could have made him feel her love and cleared things up that way.

And now Cordelia was here. He had asked her. It was as though he hadn't wanted to be alone with Nina . . .

The more she thought about his coming in her those two lies, the more upset she became, until finally, when Cordelia left, she had to speak about this last—and more glaring one . . . Maybe it was the drinks that made her do it.

The Black Widow Flirts With Death—And Loses

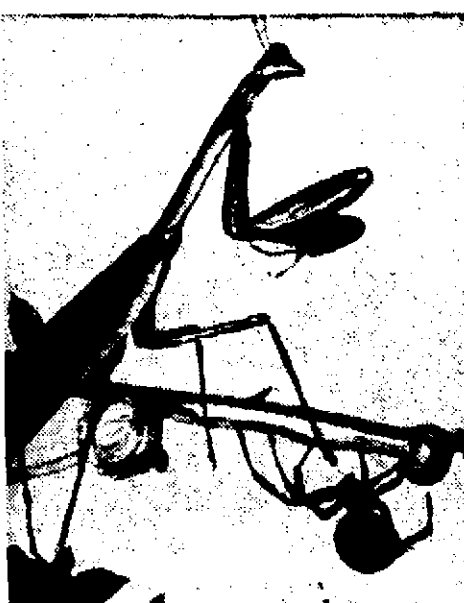

By The AP Feature Service

The black widow spider, with a venom said to be deadlier, drop for drop, than the rattlesnake's is so tough that sometimes she gobbles her mate when tired of him.

The praying mantis, long as a man's hand, is another cannibal of the bug world, warring mercilessly on other insects. The female, like the black widow, often eats her undersized mate.

So it was a championship fight when Edwin Way Teale found a black widow and a praying mantis in his garden, placed them on the same twig and photographed the encounter for his book, "Grassroot Jungles." (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

The battle, blow by blow:

ROUND 1
The spider ran along the twig until directly beneath one foot of the mantis, then paused...

ROUND 2
The mantis, feeling a touch, sprang back with wings spread and its spiked forelegs extended...

ROUND 3
One foreleg darted out and snapped shut over the spider before she could use her poison...

THE WINNAR!
And the mantis dined on its victim, snuffing the while his victory snuff.

AGRICULTURE

New York's as well as the country's, most important fur bearers are the muskrat and the skunk.

Uncle Ab says that "no parking" signs will disappear because no parking will be allowed there.

More than 2,435,000,000 eggs were shipped to New York City during 1936, each in its own private compartment, in a case.

Unripened cheese of several kinds can be made in the home from sour milk, and Cornell bulletin E-322 has the information.

from the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca, New York.

Fall plowing is especially important to prepare the home garden for planting next spring. A careful job will save time when the garden is fitted for planting next spring.

Top-dressing of pastures with manure should be done in the fall. Cattle do not like to graze the first season on land where manure has been spread in the spring or summer.

Any program to help older rural youth must provide for those who will eventually engage in occupations other than farming according to agricultural leaders.

Woodstock Fire Insurance Cut

Woodstock, Nov. 23 — Since July 15, when the New York Fire Insurance Rating Organization created a new division under the classification of towns and villages, Albert Cashdollar, town supervisor, and Warren Hutt, local insurance agents, have been working to have Woodstock assigned to the new classification. Official announcement that Woodstock is now rated as Class C2 was received Monday morning, November 22nd.

This means that the low fire insurance rates formerly applying only within one mile of the fire house (measured over roads which the fire engines would ordinarily be expected to travel) have been extended to take in those homes which are within two miles of the fire house. As this will cut fire insurance rates by more than half in many instances and slightly less than half in others within the new limit, Woodstockers have obviously received a direct benefit through the improvements in fire-fighting facilities recently made by the local government. In 1936 the fire district under the protection of the Woodstock Volunteer Fire Company was extended to take in the entire township; the town is now in the process of providing an up-to-date fire station and the fire commissioners have recently purchased a new piece of motor apparatus to add to the two pumps already provided.

The New York Fire Insurance Rating Organization was created under an act of the New York Legislature and is supported by all stock fire insurance companies in proportion to the amount of insurance these companies underwrite in this state. This organization sets up specifications for the various classifications assigned to the cities, counties, towns and villages. The classifications depend upon the degree of fire protection provided. Under each classification the rates are mandatory and standard with all stock fire insurance companies licensed to engage in business by the State.

Last July 15th the Rating Organization created a new classification called C2. Mr. Hutt, believing that Woodstock met these specifications brought this matter to the attention of Mr. Cashdollar and together they completed the necessary red tape consisting of the application, copies of town resolutions, etc., and the new classification was granted.

This new classification for Woodstock should not be confused with the effort being made by the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's and Local Insurance Agents' Association to improve the classification of Ulster county as a whole. The change of county classification, when accomplished, will now reduce fire insurance rates so far as Woodstock Township is concerned only for those properties located over two miles from the Woodstock fire station and which are not left unoccupied during the winter, and only to the extent of 20 per cent.

ATTENDED TESTIMONIAL DINNER AT SCHENECTADY

Peter J. Halloran, president of the New York First Regiment Association of United Spanish War Veterans, Mrs. Halloran and Miss Alfrida Halloran were in Schenectady Saturday evening, where they attended the testimonial dinner tendered by the Capital District Council to the national and state officers at the Van Curen Hotel.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Here's a new note on the educational influence of the movies. A school teacher (not in Hollywood) was faced with a disturbing phenomenon. Seemed every time one of her pupils went to the blackboard there was a tense intensity among the others, and frequently the reciting child suddenly sat on the floor amid general glee. Being a good disciplinarian, the school-marm got to the bottom of things immediately, learned the children were engaged in a continuous game called Parkyarkus—"if any kid forgets to keep his fingers crossed," as one explained, "he's gotta park-his-karkus—right there!"

Interesting short: Pete Smith's essay on "Radio."

The silver anniversary dinner for Eddie Cantor set 20th Century back about $6,000—and worth it, too, if for no other reason than it got Jack Benny on the air kidding Eddie's "Ali Baba."

New little actress in "Having Wonderful Time" is Becky Bayer, who wants to change her name to Bretta but doesn't specify whether whole wheat or white-...

Leave It To Errol

Inevitable item from the "Rob-in Hood" location: "With a bow and arrow, Errol Flynn, Warner Bros. star, killed a 25-pound wildcat in the woods near Chico, Calif." Why are they having a peace conference, anyway, now that the redoubtable Errol has mastered the bow and arrow and could settle all those foreign messes single-handed?

Today's quotation: Rose Strader (of "The Last Gangster") surveys the question of casual romance and career: "An actress more than women in any other profession always has to look her best. She cannot if she is emotionally upset." (Miss Strader is a newcomer in Hollywood, apparently unfamiliar with the truism that no movie actress becomes too emotionally upset to look her best for the news cameras.)

Hiding Out At Home

Joseph Calleia has solved the problem actors have in getting away from it all. Calleia had a six-months' vacation recently, and wanted to be alone, except for a quick trip to New York. He managed it. For six months he found uninterrupted leisure to write a plan, to read the books he'd been planning to read, and to compose songs which were a profitable hobby. How did he do it? He refused to answer the telephone, wrote letters to no one, avoided public places. And where was his hide-out? Right here in Hollywood, at his home.

Various Activities At Wallkill School

Wallkill, Nov. 23.—At a student organization meeting last week, Maybelle Carpenter, Louise Miller and Marjorie Curtis were elected cheer leaders for the basketball season. Others who tried out for cheer leaders were Irene Rine, Iris Caswell and Margaret Edsall.

An editorial staff for the school paper was also elected as follows: Editor-in-chief, Edward Kovitz; assistant editor, Howard Terwilliger; literary editor, Jane Kovitz; sports editor, Charles Chambers; jokes editor, Andy Harcher; art editor, Arnold Sholey.

The senior play, "Girl Shy," which was presented on last Thursday evening in the school auditorium was a great success.

The boys team of the high school played their first basketball game of the season on Friday evening when they were defeated by Cornwall-on-Hudson High team with a score 21-11. But the local Junior Varsity team defeated the Cornwallists with a score 21-9. On Wednesday evening, November 24, the boys' and girls' teams will play Montgomery High at Montgomery.

School will close on Wednesday afternoon for the Thanksgiving recess and will reopen on Monday, November 29.

PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "Ali Baba Goes to Town." In a musical comedy that pokes fun with a shy determination at the American national scene, "Ali Baba Goes to Town" at the Broadway with Eddie Cantor leading the procession. It's a typical Cantor film with much music, much laughter and the usual quota of pretty girls parading around in effective costumes. In this one Mr. Cantor has a dream and it takes him to the exotic east where he tells a Sultan how to achieve prosperity by modern methods. During the festivities, camera illusion makes it possible for the star to fly about on a magic carpet and he sings and jests his way from one situation into another. The show is satisfying entertainment, dressed up with a flair that should appeal to audiences. Others in the cast are June Lang, Tony Martin, Roland Young and Louise Hovick. John Carradine and Alan Dinehart. A 20th Century-Fox presentation.

Kingsway: "Partners in Crime" and "Behind the Mike." Politics mix with gaiety in the opening attraction at the Kingsway with the laugh team of Lynn Overman and Roscoe Karns in the roles of a couple of snoopers who get into a lot of difficulty both at home and with the general public. "Behind the Mike" is the story of a small town broadcasting station and of a big city announcer who comes there to take the place over. William Gargan, Sterling Holloway, and Judith Barrett are featured.

Orpheum: "Call It a Day" and "Rhythm of the Clouds." Olivia DeHavilland, Ian Hunter, Roland Young, Milda Inescort and Anita Louise are among the featured players in the first film at the Orpheum, a laugh fest without a dull moment while Patricia Ellis and Warren Hall are seen to advantage in the second feature, a musical number that is also occasionally humorous.

Tomorrow
 Broadway: "Alcatraz Island." Much fanfare has heralded this grim criminal story of the nation's most fool proof prison. The story concerns a big city racketeer who is finally sent to the island prison where he is paired with one of his gangland pals almost causes his death. The film is sheer melodrama with blazing machine guns, working full blast, with duplicity forming the plot basis and with crime and the detection of criminals dramatized.

with skill and gusto. The scenes on Alcatraz Island are especially gripping and the whole show is exciting and tense throughout. The players include Ann Sheridan, John Littel, Dick Purcell, Vladimir Sokoloff, George E. Stone, Mary Maguire and Doris Lloyd. A Warner Brothers presentation directed by William McGann.

Kingsway: "Hopalong Rides Again" and "Fit for a King." Double features continue at the Kingsway with one of Clarence Mulford's western stories offering plenty of virile action in "Hopalong Rides Again." The starring role is again handled by William Boyd. "Fit for a King" is the other attraction and it is Joe E. Brown's latest comedy offering.

Orpheum: "Can This Be Dixie" and "Blazing Sixes." Little Jane Withers is the star of the opening Orpheum attraction in a show last into of the southland. The play has much Dixie music plus the usual amount of comedy. "Blazing Sixes" is a western thriller with the singing Dick Foran in the main role.

HOME BUREAU

Accord.
 Accord, Nov. 22.—Twenty-seven gathered at a meeting of the Accord Home Bureau held at the home of Mrs. Albert Myers last Tuesday for the first lesson on pneumonia control.

Mrs. Edward Davenport, leader in the health project, presented the paper on Pneumonia. She stressed the early recognition of pneumonia symptoms as a chill, sudden rise in temperature, pain in chest, prune juice-like sputum. Only one or more of these symptoms may be evident. She also emphasized the need of complete rest and calling a physician early as possible, so that tests may be made to see what type of germ or pneumococcus is present. There are many varieties of pneumococci. For five of these a serum may be obtained from the state free by the doctors.

There will be two more lessons on pneumonia, one on "Care of a Pneumonia Patient," on December 14, and "Diet for a Pneumonia Patient" on January 18, 1938.

The next meeting will be on "Grooming Care of the Hair and Hair Arrangement" on November 30.

Lown Exonerated By Ulster Jury of Drunken Charge

Morton Lown of 117 Downs street, Kingston, was found not guilty last evening by a town of Ulster jury of a year-old charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. The trial, which started at 7:30 o'clock, lasted until midnight and the jury was out about 20 minutes before returning a not guilty verdict.

At a prior trial the jury disagreed. The trial Monday evening was had before Justice of the Peace Richard J. Mooney of Edgelyville. The first trial was had October 22, 1937, after the charge had been laid October 3, 1936, when the arrest was made. Frequent adjournments took place after the arrest until the time of the trial.

Arrested Year Ago.

The arrest took place a year ago on the Plank road following an accident. State Troopers Reilly and Elliott and Deputies McCullough and Witte were called to the scene of the crash and all testified to the happenings at the trial. Harley Palen, who was at the scene prior to the arrival of the officers, also testified. He told the jury that the Lown car had passed him and proceeded down the road about 150 feet when it left the road and ran into a ditch and struck a pole. He said he stopped and assisted the officers in getting the man out of the car after they arrived. An attempt had been made by him to get the man out after the accident but he could not do so. He said he went to the car and heard groans coming from it and there was but one man in the car.

Dr. Snyder Testifies.

Dr. Frederick Snyder also testified and said he found five or six fractured ribs and that Mr. Lown was also suffering from a severe bump on the head, a black eye and a cut on the nose. The symptoms which were testified to as being the basis for the intoxication charge. Dr. Snyder said might have been produced by concussion of the brain. A Mr. Preez was sworn as a character witness and Lown also testified in his own behalf.

Frank Campochiaro appeared for defendant and Roger H. Loughran for the prosecution.

The jury was Warren Stokes, Charles Zeman, John O'Connor, Grover Haffey, Charles Vaughan and Clarence Benton.

Employment Staff Moves to Burgevin Building Uptown

The New York State Employment Service, formerly the NRS, which has occupied offices on the third floor of the city hall for many months, is not located on the second floor of the Burgevin building, Fair and Main streets, in the offices formerly occupied by the New York city water department.

As stated in The Freeman several weeks ago it was planned to remove the employment office from the city hall to the Burgevin building as soon as the offices could be gotten ready. This work was completed Monday and the work of moving taken up that afternoon.

This morning the employment office opened in its new quarters.

NEW STAR SHOWS UP SUN AS DIM CANDLE

Supernova Found to Be 250 Million Times Brighter.

Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton, Calif.—Astronomers have discovered a supernova, or "exploding star," which may mean the creation of a new planetary system.

Dr. F. Zwicky of the California Institute of Technology first photographed the celestial phenomenon August 28. Since then the awe-inspiring manifestation has been the subject of repeated observations at the Lick observatory.

The supernova has received the designation "N. G. C. 4182," which places it outside the stellar system in which the earth has its place.

The supernova at its maximum apparent brightness was only about one-sixth of that of the faintest star visible to the eye. It had an estimated brilliance of 250,000,000 times that of the sun, but its radiance was decreased because of its great distance from the earth, estimated at 3,000,000 light years.

It is difficult to conceive of the brightness of this new star. A supernova was found in the center of the Andromeda nebula in 1885.

That particular supernova was estimated to be 20,000 times brighter than the sun. Placed in our own stellar system, the 1885 star from a distance of nine light years would appear 100 times brighter than a full moon.

If it could be put in the place of the sun it would give 100,000,000 times the light of that sphere, and in a space of one month at maximum brightness it would radiate as much light as our sun does in 10,000,000 years.

The supernova now under observation has an estimated intrinsic brightness of 250,000,000 times that of the sun.

The spectrum of the new supernova can be photographed with a spectrograph. This is the first time that such a phenomenon has been photographed.

The cause of the outburst of a nova is not known definitely, but one noted astronomer, Stromberg, suggests the possibility that it is the making of a new planetary system. No known supernova has appeared in the earth's stellar system.

Nancy's body was found under a piece of tin and a coroner's jury attributed her death to accidental causes. Miss O'Connor was arrested at the home of her grandparents in Merchantville, N. J.

Brown Case Due in Court of Appeals

Port Jervis with truckman enroute to the coal fields. On the way he exhibited a considerable sum of money. He failed to return and several days later gave himself up at the Orange County Home near Goshen and was arrested and turned over to Sheriff Molyneux and charged with the murder of the two aged persons. The indictment under which he stood trial was for the murder of Mr. Handelman.

Convicted of murder, first degree, he was sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing in August but an appeal stayed the sentence.

Brown defended his actions and on the stand told how blood on his clothing had been caused by a cut which his girl received on the head when he attempted to take an ax away from her when he alleged she had threatened him. He denied having been in the Handelman house and said he had been at the fire house some time after the alleged murder and brought witnesses to prove that he had been at the fire which was discovered prior to the fire at Handelman's. His confession he said had been secured through fear of a crowd which had gathered outside Mr. Murray's office in Ellenville when he was returned to Ellenville the day he was arrested. He said that the platoon gear which was found bloodstained in a garden adjacent to the Handelman house had not been in his possession and said he had admitted its possession in his confession because of fear of bodily harm.

District Attorney Cleon B. Murray will argue the appeal for prosecution today and Robert G. Groves and Assemblyman J. Edward Conway and Harry Flemming will appear for the appellant. Mr. Groves and Mr. Conway appeared as defense counsel on the trial but will be assisted on the appeal by Mr. Flemming.

Traver's Letter To Supervisors On Pistol Permits

Advocating an increase in the pistol permit fee, County Judge Frederick G. Traver, under whose direction this work comes, presented a letter to the board of supervisors Monday evening suggesting that the board petition Senator Wicks and Assemblyman Conway to endeavor to procure an enactment of an amendment whereby the fee would be increased so that the cost of issuing pistol permits would be borne by those who secure the permits instead of being borne by the taxpayers.

Under the present system the fee is but 50 cents and he advocates an increase to at least $1 or possibly $2 so that the entire cost may be borne by the persons who benefit by the law. Besides placing the cost upon the party who seeks the license, Judge Traver also believes that the increased cost would discourage many persons who have no real use for such a license from seeking to carry a concealed gun upon their persons.

Judge Traver's letter to the board follows:

November 22, 1937.

The Honorable, the Board of Supervisors,

Court House,

Kingston, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

Each year in the past, as this year, I have included in my report to your Honorable Body in the matter of the Pistol Permit Bureau a recommendation that action be taken toward securing an amendment to Section 1897 of the Penal Law increasing the fee for the issuance of a license from fifty cents as at present, to at least one dollar, to the end that the Pistol Bureau might pay its own way, thereby relieving the taxpayers of all expense in connection therewith.

If this fee were increased to two dollars the entire cost of this bureau, including payment for the various sets of blank forms and records required by the law, which are quite voluminous, complicated and expensive (and which must be classified and reclassified), and also including postage and express charges involved in forwarding applications to Albany for examination by the Department of Correction and then again later to the Department of State Police, as directed by statute, would be covered. In other words, the amount of appropriation of $600, which you annually make and which I again request this year, would thus be refunded to the county and the burden of taxes lessened to that extent.

A citizen, in order to procure a license to hunt must pay a fee of more than two dollars annually. Why should not a person who, for some reason or other, wishes a license to carry a pistol concealed upon his person, pay at least as much as the hunter is compelled to pay, for the privilege he seeks? Personally I think he should be required to pay much more, thereby perhaps checking to some extent the demand for pistol permits when they are not necessary.

May I most respectfully suggest that it might be wise for your Honorable Body to request your senator and your member of assembly to endeavor to procure the enactment, at the coming session of the Legislature, of an amendment to the present law, providing for increased fees.

Very respectfully yours,

FREDERICK G. TRAVER,

County Judge.

House Tax Group Favors Revised Corporate System

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—A House tax sub-committee tentatively approved today complete revision of the corporate tax system. It would involve repeal of the undistributed profits tax for all corporations with incomes up to $25,000 and retention on a modified basis for those with larger incomes.

The new plan, Chairman Vinson (D-Ky.) said, will be "particularly helpful to the hardship cases—corporations needing money for the purpose of debt payment, plant expansion, to repair capital structure, and the like."

It would impose on corporations with incomes up to $25,000 an income tax of 12 1/2 per cent on the first $5,000 of earnings and of 14 per cent on earnings of $5,000 to $25,000.

Corporations with incomes in excess of $25,000, Vinson said, would pay a tax graduated from 16 to 20 per cent, the rates graduated according to the amount of profits distributed to stockholders in the form of dividends.

Estimates show, Vinson said, that these two sets of rates would yield the same revenue as the existing corporate tax law, making up for a reduction in the amount of taxes that individuals will pay on dividends.

Taxes on individuals, he said, should be lowered by some $60,000,000 under the new proposal.

Jury Gets Green Case

Albion, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP)—A Supreme Court jury received the case of Daniel Green, 27, Medina, charged with the first degree murder of his wife, today at 11:35 a. m. Green, a truck driver, was arrested after his wife, Mrs. Eunice Green, 35, was stabbed to death with a paring knife several weeks ago on a street here.

Says U. S. Should 'Beware'

Washington, Nov. 23 (AP)—Representative William B. Barry, of Hollis, N. Y., said today the United States should "beware" of the propaganda urging cooperation with European democracies to present a united front against Fascism and Nazism. "We have nothing to gain and everything to lose," Barry said in a statement in the Congressional Record.

Famous Big Ben Is Not a Clock but Giant Bell

Big Ben is not a clock! It is a giant bell, weighing 13 tons, with a four hundredweight hammer, on which the Westminster clock, built by Frederick Dent and fixed in the tower in 1858, strikes the hours. The first blow on Big Ben denotes the correct time.

Largest striking, most accurate and powerful public clock in the world, says London Tit-Bits Magazine, the centers being 23 feet in diameter. The figures are 2 feet long, the minute spaces one foot square, and the copper minute hands are 14 feet long, weighing about 2 hundredweight each. They travel a distance equal to 100 miles a year. The gunmetal hour hands, nine feet long, weigh about 6 hundredweight. The 13 foot pendulum, beating two seconds, has a bob that weighs 4 hundredweight, and the clock weights are nearly 2 1/2 tons. Big Ben's young brothers, the four quarter bells, account for nearly eight tons.

Winding is done by electric motor three times a week, but contrary to popular belief, the clock is not automatically synchronized or controlled, although twice a day it telegraphs its time automatically to Greenwich observatory for checking. Its accuracy is astonishing. Out of 270 days checked, the error of signal was not greater than two-tenths second on 118 days, from two-tenths to five-tenths second on 105 days, five-tenths to one second on 42 days and only greater than one second on five occasions.

To get to that clock room you must climb 282 steps.

Stocks Break in N. Y. and London

Stocks again broke Monday, both in New York and London. On the New York Exchange industrial lost 6.26 points on the Dow-Jones averages, only about 11 points above the average for the same day in 1934, closing at 114.19. Ralls were down 1.51, closing at 29.55. Both reached the lowest point they have struck since 1935. Utilities were off 0.69 point, to 21.16. In London ralls reached their lowest level since March, 1935. Paris Bourse was weak.

Corporate bonds declined here; governments were easier. In the commodities silk, rubber and hides were off, but much of the earlier losses in wheat were regained in late trading. Cotton was irregular. Zinc was quoted at 5.50 cents a pound, from 5.75.

Steel operations are scheduled by the Steel Institute at 31 per cent of capacity, off 5.4 points from preceding week-lowest since week of December 3, 1934.

Department of Labor reported factory employment of 1.7 per cent in October, not as sharp a decline as had been expected. Administration officials are reported to have a new housing program practically completed, to be administered by the FHA and the U. S. Chamber of Commerce in cooperation. Plans call for the formation of a large national mortgage association, with capital stock of about $50,000,000 to be subscribed by the RFC. Association will have power to issue securities totaling $1,000,000,000 in value. Securities would be backed exclusively by insured mortgages.

Washington dispatches yesterday indicated that Senate Democratic leaders favor amendment to the undistributed profits tax providing for percentage exemption of corporate earnings rather than for specific exemptions in terms of dollars. A percentage exemption of 30 per cent is being discussed. The percentage plan would be helpful to both large and small businesses.

The supreme court yesterday paved the way for a final decision on the scope of power of the National Labor Relations Board when it accepted for review a fourth important test case on the Wagner Labor Act. The case chosen was one in which the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals held the board had exceeded its authority in ordering the Pacific Greyhound Lines, Inc., to withdraw all recognition from the Drivers' Association, Pacific Greyhound Lines. The board had ruled the association to be an employer sponsored organization.

Caterpillar Tractor reports for 10 months ended October 31 show net profit equal to $5.01 a common share vs. $4.11 in 1936 period. Earnings of Plymouth Oil for this year are estimated at around $3 a share, vs. $1.65 in 1936.

General American Transportation declared dividend of $2, vs. preceding payment of $1.50. Alabama Great Southern announced extras of $4 on both preferred and ordinary stocks in addition to semi-annual payment of $1.50 on each. North American Aviation announced initial cash distribution of 12 1/2 cents. Florida Power & Light announced first payments on preferreds since January, 1933. Household Finance voted $1 extra.

Halifax Reports

London, Nov. 23 (AP)—Viscount Halifax reported today to King George at Buckingham Palace while the London press speculated on the result of his talks with Chancellor Hitler of Germany. On one hand it was freely intimated that the talks last week were successful for Germany. These quarters believed the Halifax journey would result in Britain's abandonment of the policy of seeking general European settlement of war alarms.

An Ohio farmer is a little worried fearing "all these electrical things are going to make the women lazy." There's his wife, for example. She now has an electric washing machine and has been seen by her husband sitting down looking at a newspaper while the washer worked. She has also an electric mangle, toaster, percolator, stove, waffle iron, radio, and so on. When this couple were married the wife was "lucky to have a hand pump in the kitchen."

Yes, money is the root of evil—and how people dig for that root!

Fashion Futures Opens Monday in New York

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—The spotlight flashed on American creations last night when the fashion group presented "Fashion Futures—American Edition."

The all-American theme was chosen for the two-hour display in keeping with the rise of America's achievements in fashion during the last 25 years.

The brilliant pageant of spring designs presented 700 costumes with furs, jewels and accessories worth a half million dollars. One hundred of America's prettiest mannequins paraded the outfits which varied all the way from tailormade party clothes and costumes for air travel to negligees and formal evening gowns. Warm beige and sun tones, blues in a wide and varied range, green, white and red held the color limelight.

California play clothes stressed shorts and slacks of cotton linen or rayon suiting worn with box jackets and halters or blouses of contrasting hue. Culottes (divided skirts) coin-dotted, cotton, dressmaker swim suits and knee length beach coats also were shown.

Travelling Clothes

Travelling clothes featured slim wool dresses worn with straight furred top coats, plain frocks accompanied by plaid jackets and brown, green and mustard tweed suits. Crepe afternoon frocks generally clung to the slim fitted diaphragm and were often worn with striking colored accessories such as raffia embroidered jacket. Skirts and sleeves were short. Evening clothes were glamorous, decollete and full-skirted. Sheer chiffons, crisp nets and glistening satins in such hues as white, chartreuse, grape, rose, and green topped with shimmering little jackets embroidered with shells or sequins were outstanding.

Accessories Draw Attention

In line with predictions that costume accents will be important this spring, accessories drew a great deal of attention. A bold necklace of gold birds was worn with a dark blue wool resort frock and a splashing spray of simulated diamonds and emeralds coiled at the neckline of a white dinner dress.

Bags were simple, large and elegant, always keyed in color to add a striking touch to the frock, as shown by a dark blue straw pouch of alligator sack slung over the shoulder to match a cartwheel hat. Vivid green or lemon yellow gloves, toned to the hue of a scarf or hat appeared with sports frocks, and thin wool or silk scarfs printed in striking designs were worn with suits.

Jackets, slated for a place in the fashion sun this spring, appeared in every possible cut. The vague "crazy hats" were reflected in a display devoted entirely to such striking headgear as pancake berets worn at a fifty degree angle and eccentric straw shapes with colored veil loops.

At a public ceremony on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Dugout on East Chestnut street, Frank Reilly of Wappingers Falls will be the installing officer and delegations from other Posts, including Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Middletown, Port Jervis, Catskill, Hudson and Windham will be in attendance.

Paris Police Busy

Paris, Nov. 23 (AP)—Police today searched the apartment of a prominent engineering consultant in what they described as the latest foray in the hunt for evidence of a secret revolutionary society accused of plotting against the government. The wife of the consultant, Mme. Edouard Deloncle, told operatives her husband was traveling in Italy. The two-hour search produced a quantity of papers which were seized for further examination.

Old Testament Mentions Both Plough, Ploughing

In the oldest writings with which we are all familiar, the books of the Old Testament, occasional references are found to the plough and ploughing and these are invariably of such wording as to prove the operation a matter of course. For instance, observes a writer in the Montreal Herald, Isaiah 28: 24 reads:

"Doth the ploughman plough all day to sow? doth he open and break the clods of his ground?"

The idea was evidently as general as today and the purpose the same but the implement, the plough, quite different—a sort of iron pointed or fire hardened stick or crooked limb as quite often a type of stone or metal hoe. That was about 800 years before Christ. Micah, 300 or 300 years, earlier said that said that peace should come ad men would beat their swords into ploughshares." Not much of a ploughshare as we know it but evidently such as used at that time.

Writers of the long ago said little of the plough or ploughing. They recognized it as the basic operation in agriculture, the great basic industry, and that was enough, for who needed to say anything about something everybody knew all about and that was at the same time, particularly in those days of crooked or pointed sticks anything but inspirational of the muse.

Harbor Seal Best Known of All Marine Mammals

One of the best known and most frequently seen of all marine mammals is the harbor seal. This is so because it has the widest geographic range of any seal. It is found in the Pacific from the coast of Japan north of Siberia, and south along the American coast to Lower California, writes Colin Campbell Danborn in Field Museum News. In the Atlantic it occurs from about New York to Greenland, and from Spain, through the British Isles, to the Scandinavian peninsula. A coast inhabiting species, it lives in fjords and near rocky points, islets and sand bars. Often it enters the larger rivers and bays. Its appearance in these latter places, frequently as much as a hundred miles from the sea, accounts for its having been named "harbor seal." It was described and pictured by writers and artists as early as the middle of the sixteenth century.

The harbor seal is the smallest member of the family Phocidae, which comprises the true or earless seals. In these, the hind flippers form functionally part of the tail, and are useless for progression on land.

Harbor seals never exceed six feet in length. Large ones weigh between eighty and one hundred pounds. They do not gather in such large herds as other species—seldom are more than twenty-five found together. They are also less migratory, usually living in the same place throughout the year if weather and food conditions permit. A few come south along the New England coast each winter.

The coats of harbor seals are extremely varied in color. The fur of some is uniformly yellowish-gray or dark gray; others have the yellowish coat with irregular dark spots, or the dark coat with yellowish spots.

Gypsies Count in Greek, Speak Many Greek Words

The fact that gypsies all over the world count in Greek and use numerous Greek words further substantiates the theory of their early arrival in the Balkan region. For "seven, eight, nine, ten" gypsies say "efta, otta, enea, deca." In Macedonia at this period also were numerous Phoenician and Egyptian slaves who worked in Alexander's arsenal.

Undoubtedly the gypsies intermarried to some extent with the Egyptians, notes a writer in the Chicago Tribune, and when their descendants later set forth on their wanderings, still trying to forget their miserable days in India, they told people that they were from Egypt. Their tendency toward sleight-of-hand, fortune telling, and other magic which Europeans associated with Egypt undoubtedly gave them their most usual name of gypsies. Pharaohs (from Pharaohs) is another of their appellations. Their association with Rumanians probably accounts for the names Rom and Romany, so frequently applied to them. Other names for gypsies are Gitanos, Zingaries, Calos, Bohemians, Tziganes, Zigeuner, Crigany.

Will Se Book

New York, Nov. 23 (AP)—Frank C. Dodd, president of Dodd, Mead & Co., publisher in this country of "Coronation Commentary," said today the book would be sold to be sold. "That has nothing to do with it," he said when questioned whether the victory of the Duke of Windsor in his libel suit against the author and English publishers of the book would affect its America distribution.

"Paid Provocateurs"

Detroit, Nov. 23 (AP)—Charged that "paid provocateurs" acted in the Pontiac, Mich., riot strike, were voiced today as steps were taken to make the nearest police in the automobile labir field a lasting one. Unidentified outside interests seeking to drum up business for labor spy organizations were blamed.

Duck Hawk Is Speedy

The duck hawk is the American version of the peregrine falcon of the falcon-hunting days of old. Its speed has been developed through centuries of pursuit for food. No bird is safe from this feathered destroyer. Sharp, cruel beak and talons, plus speed, make it almost certain death for any other bird, no matter what the size of the prey. It kills for pure love of slaughter, dropping like a plummet on a flock of smaller birds, striking again and again, then winging off without even touching its kills.

The Cottonmouth Moccasin

The cottonmouth moccasin is one of the most venomous of United States snakes. It gets its name from the cotton-white inner lining of its mouth. Found in southeastern states, it is a cannibal, eats other snakes. Though its poison kills who are injected by the snake, that same venom is used to combat a blood disease of humans called "hemophilia," which is uncontrollable bleeding.

Empire State Briefs

New York, Nov. 23 (AP).—Insurance for airplane passengers will be cut as much as 75 per cent on or before January 1. It was announced today by Dan Searritt, underwriting manager of Associated Aviation Underwriters of New York.

"The new rates," he said, "will be the same as the rates for rail travel and will be in effect on all domestic air lines of the United States."

Cold, Cold Weather

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP).—New York residents buttoned up their overcoats today and prepared for a continued siege of sub-freezing weather.

Gustave Lindgren, senior meteorologist in Albany, said the cold blast will continue tomorrow and possibly through Thanksgiving Day. The mercury dipped to 20 here yesterday, two points below the season's previous mark of 22 reached November 12.

Fewer Wedding Bells

New York, Nov. 23 (AP).—Weddings in New York's municipal marriage chapels fell off 40 per cent during September and October as compared with the previous year and an expert cited "clear heads" as the reason today.

Only 1,804 weddings were performed in the city chapels during the 60 days as against 3,275 in the same period of 1936 although about the same number of licenses were issued.

James Bell, deputy city clerk, ascribed the drop to the new law which requires 72 hours between the issuance of the license and the marriage.

A Course in Art

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP).—Casper Mirra, 20-year-old parking lot attendant, says he is going to pay for his automobile and a course in art with a $2,000 reward for helping to capture Percy "Angel Face" Reary.

Attorney General Cummings announced the Federal rewards would be paid to Mirra and Ivan Whiteford, Syracuse janitor, who supplied the information resulting in the capture of John Oley and Harold "Red" Crowley, although the tips leading to the captures were given to police instead of Department of Justice agents.

Whiteford will receive $4,000 reward.

20 New Apples

Geneva, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP).—Twenty new varieties of apples and two new crab apples, listed by the New York state fruit testing association in its 1937-38 catalog, were recommended today by the state agricultural experiment station at Geneva.

Free And Not in Jail

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP).—Mario Gizio, 19, was free today and not in jail, because he took a 600-mile automobile trip—and got what he wanted after.

Arrested November 9, charged with theft of six tires and wheels, Gizio returned four of them, but told Assistant District Attorney George E. Wisch a companion had taken the other two. Wisch said he freed the youth to find them and after 16 days and 600 miles

Nobility Loves a Cathartic-Crank!

Most cathartics are habit-forming—in time you must take them often and stop up the dose. There's no fear of this when you eat a NATURAL laxative food like Kellogg's All-Bran.

Instead of over-stimulating your intestines, All-Bran supplies TWO things they need. First, vitamin "B," the amazing vitamin that tones up your intestinal tract. Second, All-Bran provides "bulk"—it absorbs water and softens like a sponge. This water-soaked mass aids elimination. Eat this crunchy, toasted cereal with milk or cream and fruits. In muffins it's delicious. But however you eat it, use it REGULARLY: eat two table-spoons of All-Bran and drink plenty of water. If you do this every day you can avoid common constipation and cathartics, too! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. At every grocer's.

Bishop of Seven Seas Is Guest in City a Few Days

The Rev. Joseph E. Rockliff, known as the Bishop of the Seven Seas, is the house guest of Mrs. Minnie Van Slyke Owens and Miss Ellen Van Slyke, at their residence on Marius street, and will leave for New York city again on Wednesday. He is in New York between laps of his globe-girdling. Father Rockliff has visited vice dens of Singapore, gro-shops in Calcutta, gambling holes on the docks of Hongkong, and haunts of debauchery from Algiers to the China Seas—these are milestones in the lone crusade of Sea-going Father Rockliff, the priest who gives sailors religion. "I cross the seas in freighters, tramp steamers, oil tankers—any kind of a ship I can find," he said in an interview in New York city on Monday. "My work leads me over 50,000 miles of land and sea each year. It is my duty to seek out ports where vice, gambling, disease and debauchery menace the lives of sailors. For 30 years Father Rockliff was a sailor himself. Born in Liverpool he joined his Majesty's navy at 19. By appointment of the Pope he was charged with the Apostleship of the sea in 1929. Today, at 68, he can look back on a life crammed with adventure, but he has not given up his work, he is just stopping off between laps of his globe-girdling.

Japan Acquires Control of Port

between Shanghai and Nan-King.

Chinese Hold City
Although Chinese troops previously were reported in flight from crumbling Wushu defenses, Japanese officers admitted Chinese still held the city, some 95 miles south-east of the nation's capital. Japanese seemed confident their troops could reach Nanjing this week.

At mid-day, Japanese said their forces still were five miles east of Wushu. Roads to the front were almost impassable because of continued heavy rains, so Japanese used airplanes to transport food and supplies to troops in the Wushu sector.

Japanese planes ranged far to the west in bombing forays. They were said to have destroyed 20 Chinese planes stationed at Chow-Kickow, in Hsuan province.

Enough Money for War
Dr. H. H. Kung, Chinese Finance Minister, declared that China is prepared financially to see the war through, no matter how long it lasts. He said preparations had been completed for a prolonged conflict, and added that removal of the government to interior cities did not mean abandonment of Nanking as the capital.

(At Moscow, the Tass (official Soviet) News Agency said the Soviet government had protested to Japan against statements of Baron Sadao Araki, former minister of war and member of Japan's high advisory council. The protest was described as "direct appeal for war against the U.S.S.R." In an interview October 25 Araki said "it probably is necessary to strike directly at Russia" to eliminate Communism in the Far East.)

North of the Shanghai war area, Japanese forces invading Shantung province prepared to cross the Yellow river to attack Tsinanfu, provincial capital.

Peiping dispatches reported that nine Americans at Taihu, Shansi province city recently captured by Japanese, were listed as safe by Japanese officers.

Japanese said records, seized when Taiwanfu, Shansi capital, fell two weeks ago, showed that a few Soviet Russians were doing Communist propaganda work in Shansi.

LEHMAN ANSWERS SEABURY CHARGE
Albany, N. Y., Nov. 23 (AP).—Governor Lehman today termed a statement by Samuel Seabury, charging him with blocking economies in New York city, as "maliciously inaccurate and untrue."

Seabury, a former judge of the court of appeals, said last Saturday at Rochester that Lehman "had postponed for four years the introduction of proper economies in New York city by raising the sham issue that Mayor (F. H.) LaGuardia's economy bill was an attempt to establish a dictatorship."

"The facts are," the Governor replied in a statement, "that the economy bill as agreed upon by Mayor LaGuardia and myself was not defeated. It was enacted in April, 1934. Furthermore, it became a law only because of the unceasing fight I made for it over a period of three months."

Craft Buys Bungalow
Richard Craft, employed at the local armory, has purchased the five room bungalow located on Albany avenue extension from Joseph Schildknecht, who is now in Florida. Before selling he decorated it, putting it in first class condition and being equipped with all modern improvements. It is one of the most attractive places on Albany avenue extension. The Crafts have taken possession of their new purchase. The sale was negotiated by Frank S. Hyatt.

A School Feature

75,000 Pupils Put In Test Tube In New York School Experiment

By INDIA GRAY SHAW
AP Feature Service Writer

New York—Seventy-five thousand New York city school children are playing guinea-pigs for the biggest educational experiment in the United States—and liking it.

In 67 schools, nearly 10 per cent of the entire school system, more children than the totaled combined populations of the New York and New Jersey state capitals, are partaking of a new curriculum. Called an "activity program," it actually is a super-combination of progressive and conservative methods.

Dr. John J. Lottus, associate superintendent, who oversees the program, is forever on a tour of the institutions involved, ranging from Hell's Kitchen to Park avenue.

Teaching by "Experience"
He says the experiment has worked well, so far, and that it is his belief that by end of the six-year period allotted for the test, every school in the city will want to join in. At present it is confined to the first six grades of the designated schools.

In the experiment, now in its second year, textbook material is taught, not only from textbooks, but from "experiences." A visit to the local grocery store (that's an "experience") may mean a lesson in arithmetic—what food costs; geography—where food comes from; and spelling—try broccoli; with a little study in human nature thrown in for good measure.

Plenty of Work
But the 75,000 children don't spend all their time touring the city. They do plenty of work right in their own classrooms. They may build a model of the coming World's Fair—and learn a lot of history while they're doing it.

If their teacher is alert, they can tie in the French and Indian war, the battle of Gettysburg, and other historical landmarks with past World's Fairs.

The activity program means plenty of work for the teachers. At the start of the school year, they must choose the sort of experiences they're going to teach. If the experiences chosen for the fourth grade—there still are grades in the activity program—do not include the usual textbook material covered by fourth graders, the experiences can't be included. There must be a tie-up with subject matter.

Meets Requirements
Why, ask the ultra-progressive? Dr. Lottus has three answers ready. 1. New York city students have to pass Regents' examinations at the end of their elementary school work.

2. Many New York city students transfer to other schools during the elementary period, and must meet standard requirements. 3. Elementary schools lay the foundation for college preparation—and the majority of colleges as yet adhere to traditional grade systems and traditional examinations, where textbook knowledge is necessary.

The activity program may be extended to all the schools at end of the six-year period—at least, through the first six grades—and eventually through junior and senior high schools.

AN "EXPERIENCE"
These boys from Manhattan's elementary schools are sketching at Inwood Park, overlooking the Hudson river. They might be just drawing, but their teacher is alert, so the pupils are getting lessons in botany, geology, geography, and history. That's the way the new education experiment works.

At the start of the school year, they must choose the sort of experiences they're going to teach. If the experiences chosen for the fourth grade—there still are grades in the activity program—do not include the usual textbook material covered by fourth graders, the experiences can't be included. There must be a tie-up with subject matter.

Meets Requirements
Why, ask the ultra-progressive? Dr. Lottus has three answers ready. 1. New York city students have to pass Regents' examinations at the end of their elementary school work.

2. Many New York city students transfer to other schools during the elementary period, and must meet standard requirements. 3. Elementary schools lay the foundation for college preparation—and the majority of colleges as yet adhere to traditional grade systems and traditional examinations, where textbook knowledge is necessary.

The activity program may be extended to all the schools at end of the six-year period—at least, through the first six grades—and eventually through junior and senior high schools.

HE HANDLES THE BALL ON ALMOST EVERY PLAY

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF HARVARD'S SINGLE WING ATTACK DEPENDS ON DECEPTION

STRUCK IS IDEAL IN THE SINGLE WING BACK ROLE—COACH HARLOW CALLS HIM 'THE MAGNIFICENT FAKER'

HE RUNS INTERFERENCE FOR HIMSELF

Harvard has a field day the afternoon after the first few minutes. Most of the time I sit on the bench with my hat over my eyes. Every time I looked up the Harvard team was lining up to try for the point after the touchdown. Struck has scored again.

A well-meaning attempt to rush the ball to me between halves, Crisler continued, "and said, 'The way to stop Harvard is to tackle Struck on every play.'"

My answer was: "That's exactly what we have been doing. Trouble is our safety man has been making all the tackles."

Coach Fritz Crisler, when asked what he thought of Struck as a ball-carrier, replied: "To tell you the truth I didn't watch him much after the first few minutes. Most of the time I sit on the bench with my hat over my eyes. Every time I looked up the Harvard team was lining up to try for the point after the touchdown. Struck has scored again.

Conducts Service Station

Donald J. Eaton, of 26 St. Mary's street, Kingston, has certified to the county clerk under provisions of the assumed business name law that he is conducting a business at 750 Broadway under the name of White Horse Service Station.

"Store" your bananas in the fruit bowl, and NOT in the refrigerator! Buy them by the hand as you find them in the store—a golden cluster, green topped or all yellow and allow them to ripen at room temperature. The only time to put bananas in the refrigerator is to chill just before serving.
